

Supporting our customers through COVID-19

Our customers rely on our paints, coatings and specialty materials to support a wide range of critical industries needed during this pandemic.

Our coatings are used on medical equipment needed by hospitals and medical professionals during this unprecedented time.

The transportation industry keeps critical supplies moving. Our paints and coatings are used on trucks, cars, ships, planes and the parts to keep them running.

We make coatings used on equipment in power plants, where our customers are ensuring the continuous supply of electricity for both homes and businesses.

Our coatings are used throughout the packaging industry on food and beverage cans.

Our materials are used on computers, mobile phones and digital devices, where demand has spiked to keep companies, industries and people connected.

Our paint and coatings are used throughout infrastructure, such as roads, tunnels and bridges.

The defense industry relies on our products, where we have multiple government contracts to fulfill.
